

Engineering Manager

Glasgow £ Negotiable

Caley require an Engineering Manager for the engineering function within the Glasgow business. This position is a central role in the organisation and involves participation in all aspects of the business.

Role.

- To manage the design process through all phases of from initial concept, detail design and drawing preparation through to manufacture, final testing and commissioning.
- To supervise and coordinate engineering activities in compliance with applicable design requirements
- To provide support and guidance to engineering personnel
- To liaise with Clients to ensure client requirements are met
- To liaise with Third Party Inspection Authorities
- To ensure products are manufactured in accordance with all client and inhouse quality requirements
- To provide the Sales Department with conceptual design engineering support, manpower and resource planning and international travel when required.

Skills

- Previous experience in similar role within similar industry
- Degree qualified, ideally in Mechanical Engineering
- Good grounding in analytical design, including stress analysis, performing calculation, interpreting FEA etc.
- Good knowledge of modern manufacturing methods and a thorough knowledge of current engineering design methods would be considered essential.
- Knowledge of design of hydraulically and electrically actuated equipment would be a distinct advantage
- Problem solving and innovation
- Strong commercial understanding
- Exposure and understanding of project management strategy

The successful applicant should be able to manage a varied and interesting workload and have good management skills as well as a good engineering design background.

The role offers an excellent remuneration package and will be commensurate with the applicant's knowledge and experience.